1.23.09 clockshop dinner with Julia Meltzer, Stephanie Snyder, Sergio Pastor, Marc Joseph Berg, Molly Dilworth, Elias Hansen, Michael Orion McManus, Zoe Crosher, Michael Damm, Shawn Records, Aimee Chang, Matthew Stadler, and others. Los Angeles, CA.

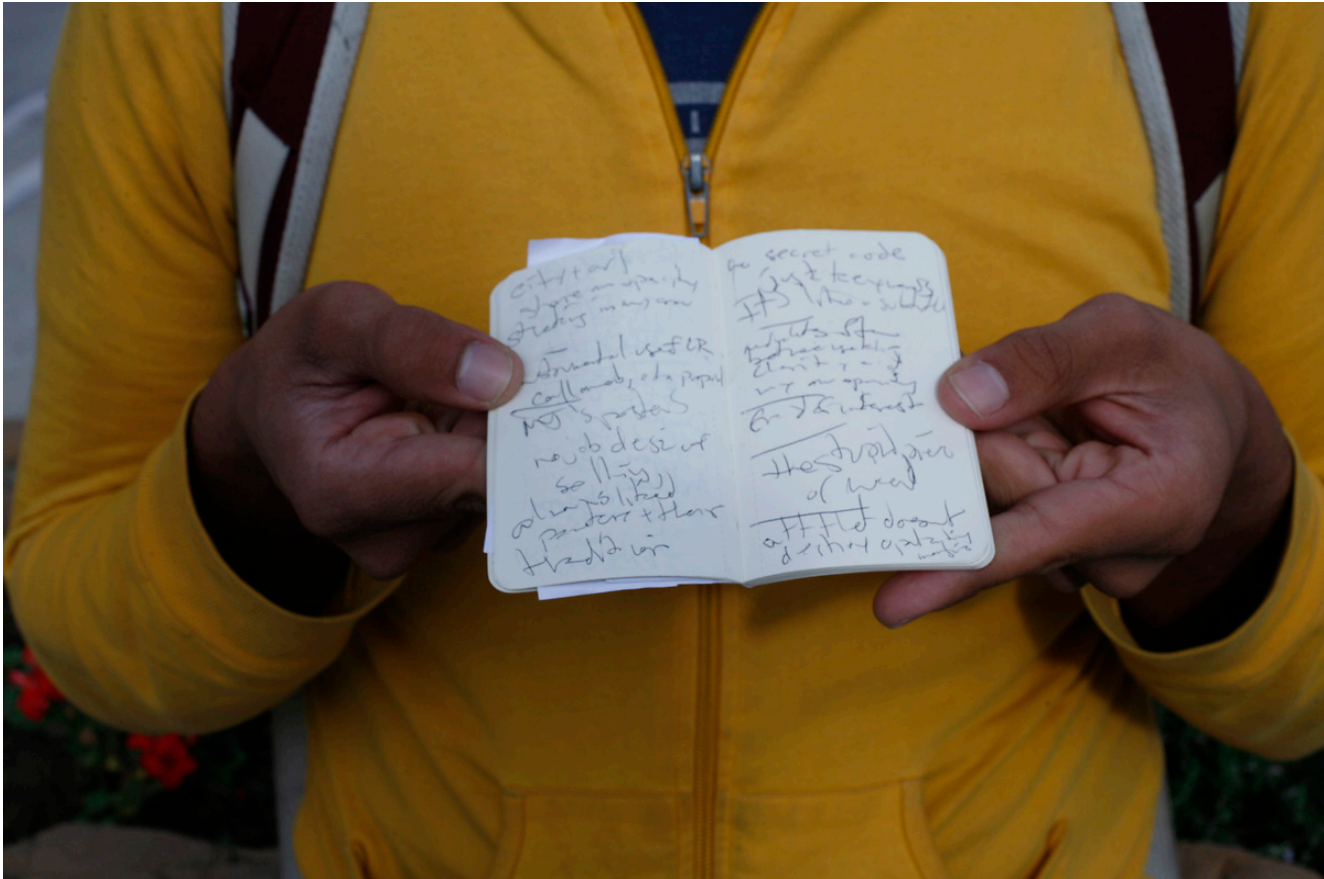

22 people / 30 bottles of wine / 2 microphones

“...they don't want to be turned into money...”

One of our more bizarre documents. (Sergio Pastor's narrative account of this dinner will be posted soon.)

About

suddenly is a series of publications, exhibitions, and other public events concerning the new shape of cities. suddenly began in Portland, Oregon, in the fall of 2008 and will continue to transpire in many places around the world.

On this website, you are engaging with events that track an on-going conversation, happening in many places on the planet. All conversations and events are locally hosted, with help from members of the suddenly team. If you are interested in hosting similar gatherings, please send a message to suddenly@suddenly.org. We hope that the website may increasingly serve as a space to assist in the coordination and planning of events.

Please check back regularly for updates and the inclusion of additional resources. Photo galleries and an online research library are soon to come. Upcoming events will be posted on the front page along with documentation of recent events. An archive of reporting on past events may be found here.
